Letter to the Editor

During the month of February, snow, ice and mud made it necessary to keep school buses off of certain roads in the county for a few days. This action was taken in the interest of safety for students and adults and to avoid extensive damage to roads and buses.

This procedure may have been inconvenient for some families. However, with the assistance and cooperation of parents, it was possible for schools to operate on schedule.

We want to thank the citizens of the county for understanding the problems we experienced during February. Transporting your students to meet the buses and keeping us informed of road conditions were invaluable services to us.

It is a pleasure to work with you in the interest of the students of this county. Without your cooperation and support, it would be impossible to provide a program of quality education and safe transportation for our students. We are grateful to you.

The Pastor Speaks

I saw her vibrant, abundant life,
Cheeks glowing in the joy of living,
Healthy in the depths of her being,
And I wanted to know her physician.

This poem was written by a young woman in college. Of course, we know the Physician of whom she speaks is the Lord. Perhaps you know people who fit the description of this poem, people who face life with vim and vigor, eager to experience all the good things it has to offer, and who in their turn make good things happen for other people. Jesus met many who were less than whole, and yet we know of the many healing miracles he performed.

As part of my training for the ministry I spent a summer as a hospital chaplain.During that time I met many different people facing illnesses and injuries, both minor and severe. All had come to seek the healing of the doctors and their modern medicines and machines. Some were frightened and alone, overwhelmed by their predicament. I found in my talking with folks, that many already knew of the Physician about whom the poem speaks. And in the end, it was this physician, this healer, in whom they put their ultimate trust, and not in the medical doctors huddled around them. For they knew that the Lord was watching over them in their sickness and pain. And that made it more bearable.

In the gospel of John, Jesus said that he had come that we might have life and have it abundantly. He did not mean to say our lives would always be calm and full of joy, or that we would never be in want or pain. Life for everyone is full of its ups and downs. But for those who know Christ as their Lord and Savior, there is more than just a cycle of good and bad. When things are good, there is someone to praise and give thanks to. And when times of trouble and pain come,there is hope and comfort in the Lord. For he has said to us that he is with us always. Nothing can separate us from the love of Christ. Hardships or illness can make our physical lives hard to bear, but the love of Christ can cure our souls and give us strength to endure and the courage to rejoice in the Lord, our spiritual physician.

The Bible And Daily Living

By Dr. William L. Trimyer
Celebrating the Supper

Lesson for April 8, 1979
Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 11:20-34

For as often as you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes again. (I Cor. 11:26)

A Table for Everyone!

Can you imagine being invited to a banquet and getting there way ahead of the other guests in order to get the best seat and the choicest cuts of the meat? That's what some of the Corinthian Christians actually practiced.

The early Christian community used to gather for what was then known as a "Love Feast." Members brought their food to pool together for a community meal. Following the "Love Feast" they would observe the Lord's Supper. Paul wrote to the Corinthian Christians because of their unfair (not to mention unChristian) practices towards the less affluent.

To get ahead of the poor, within the community and eat the choicest of the foods does not set a good precedent nor pave the way for observing the Lord's Supper! How could one possible celebrate the Supper in the right spirit after having practiced gluttony and disregard for one's fellow human being?

every human being who acknowledges Jesus as Saviour and Lord. Whether it is served on an elaborate oak-carved table with silver chalice, or on a simple folding table in the basement, the Lord's Supper does not distinguish between the rich and the poor. And at that table we become the invited guest to receive the symbols of life both abundant and eternal.

Why Have the Supper?

Jesus left us this sacrament so that we might recall with gratitude and joy the gift of life through his sacrificial death. The act of Communion is a symbolic way of saying that Christ is present with us now, living among us by his Spirit. And Paul says that we are to "do it often." Yet the repitition should not dull our knowledge and feeling of its importance for the Christian. The Supper is not something we take lightly, for it is a supreme moment in the life of any church when we honor him who once walked among us in the flesh and taught us what it means to live fully.

Paul says that we also do it to proclaim the death of Jesus and his coming again. The joyful note of the Christian faith is that we worship a living Lord! In one week we will celebrate the empty tomb. Easter is the golden dawn of the Christian faith. Easter opens the door of the cave so that light may enter to scatter the darkness. Easter is hope!

The Supper asks us to do three things. First, we are to look back and remember the historic and redemptive sacrifice of "the Lamb of God." Second, it bids us to honor and celebrate the Lord who is alive forevermore! Third, it bids us to look forward to the completion of God's purposes for human life. Our pilgrimage on earth will continue on in that other world which Christ has promised to us.

Participation in the Supper

How can we prepare for our participation in the Supper? Not by selfish behavior as was exhibited by the Corinthians. They actually betrayed the Lord by their selfishness and lack of concern for other Christians.

We come to the Supper because we are both worthy and unworthy of it. We come because there is a need in our life, a need to move into closer fellowship with Christ and our brothers and sisters in the faith. We come because Christ bids us to come and because he love us. We come because the Supper helps us experience a sense of wholeness and direction for life.

Paul says a strange thing in verse 30. "That is why a number of you are weak and ill, and some have died." What can this possibly mean? Keep in mind that Paul has denounced the sinful behavior of eating the choicest foods and leaving little for the poorer in the community. This raises an important issue, namely, the relationship between sin and disease. The author happens to believe that many illnesses are not the result of accident, but the result of life styles, attitudes, and sin. When we choose evil over good we may set ourselves up for emotional or physical breakdown. Think about it!

Danish Couple Pedals Into Appomattox

The Danish couple had never been in Appomattox before, but about dusk Sunday night they knocked on the door of the Doug Doss home and asked if they could camp out back. The Doss family invited them into their home for the night - showing them real Southern hospitality. When they reach home some time next month, they will have travelled 20,000 miles on their bicycles, 4,000 miles short of the distance around the earth as the satellite flies. Quite an adventure!
